Pelican Bay Fees: Here's Exactly What You're Paying and What You're Actually Getting

By Jake Gunther - February 02, 2026

Gen Z Lens \(/Blog/Search/Category-Gen Z Lens\) Pelican Bay \(/Blog/Search/Category-Pelican Bay\)

Let's be real. One of the first things people ask when they look at a condo in Pelican Bay is: "Wait, how much are the fees?" And honestly? That's the right question to ask. No one should buy into a community without fully understanding what their money is going toward every single month. So here it is - no fluff, no spin. Just the numbers and what they get you.

We're going to use a real listing as our example: a 3-bedroom condo at The Crescent in Pelican Bay – 8456 Abbingdon Circle. (https://linktr.ee/8456_Abbington_1722) My colleagues Jane Darling and Melinda Gunther have the full listing details over on their site, but for this post, we're zeroing in on one thing: the cost of living here. Actually living here.

The Two Fee Buckets You Need to Know About

Pelican Bay isn't like most Naples neighborhoods where you just pay one HOA and call it a day. Here, there are two layers of fees, and they cover two very different things. Once you understand the split, it all makes a lot more sense.

Layer 1 is your building's condo association fee. That fee is specific to The Crescent and covers everything related to your actual building and immediate surroundings.

Layer 2 is the Pelican Bay Foundation fee. That's the community-wide fee that covers all the big stuff the whole neighborhood shares.

Both are mandatory. Both are worth it. Let's break them down.

Layer 1: The Crescent Condo Fee — $4,254 Per Quarter

That's roughly $1,418 a month. Here's what's included:

Cable TV — already in the fee. No separate bill (provider is Hotwire)

Internet and WiFi — also covered. You're not paying a separate Comcast or AT&T bill for this.

Building Insurance — this is a big one. Your condo association's policy covers the exterior of the building and common areas. You'd still want an HO-6 policy for your personal belongings and interior finishes, but the bulk of the building coverage? Handled.

Irrigation Water — the landscaping around the building stays green. You're not thinking about it. You're not paying for it separately.

Landscaping — same idea. The grounds around The Crescent are maintained professionally. It just looks good, all the time.

Exterior Pest Control — bugs in Florida are real. This is taken care of at the building level.

Trash Removal — covered.

Pool Maintenance — the pool is maintained and ready to use. No one's asking you to pitch in.

Gate Maintenance — The Crescent is gated. That gate system, the cameras, the access - it's all maintained through this fee.

So when you look at that $4,254 quarterly number, you're not just paying for a place to live. You're paying for cable, internet, insurance coverage, landscaping, pest control, trash, pool, and security, all bundled into one payment. If you added all of that up separately, you'd be paying more. A lot more.

Layer 2: Pelican Bay Foundation Fee — $3,295 Per Year + $10,000 One-Time Transfer Fee

This is the community-wide fee. It's what gives you access to everything that makes Pelican Bay different from every other neighborhood in Naples.

The $10,000 transfer fee is a one-time cost paid at closing. It's not annual. It's not recurring. You pay it once when you buy, and it goes toward maintaining the community's infrastructure and shared spaces.

The $3,295 annual fee is what covers the big-ticket amenities. And by big-ticket, here's what we're talking about:

Private beach access — Pelican Bay has close to three miles of Gulf-front beach that is exclusively for residents. Beach attendants set up your chairs and umbrellas. There are beachside restaurants where you can eat lunch with your feet basically in the sand. This alone is worth the fee to a lot of people.

Beach tram service — you don't have to drive or even walk to the beach if you don't want to. The tram takes you there.

Tennis — nearly 20 Har-Tru courts with professional instruction available. Whether you play every day or once a month, it's there.

Pickleball — the courts are brand new. If you play, you already know this is a big deal.

Fitness and Wellness Center — a legitimate, state-of-the-art facility. Not a gym with a couple of treadmills. A real fitness center with a wellness component built in.

Gulf-front dining — there are two restaurants right on the beach, run by the community. Casual lunch spots and nicer dinner options. You don't have to leave Pelican Bay to eat well. There are also beachfront bars to network and enjoy the sunset.

Nature trails and boardwalks — miles of walking and biking paths through preserved mangroves and along Clam Bay. It's genuinely beautiful here.

So What Does It Actually Cost to Live Here? The Real Math.

Let's put it all on the table for one year:

Fee	Frequency	Annual Cost
Crescent Condo Fee	$4,254/quarter	$17,016
Pelican Bay Foundation Fee	Once/year	$3,295
Total Annual Fees		$20,311

Plus the $10,000 one-time transfer fee at closing — but that's a one-and-done.

That breaks down to about $1,692 a month in total fees. For that, you get cable, internet, building insurance, landscaping, pest control, trash, pool, a gated entrance, private beach access with tram service, tennis, pickleball, a fitness center, beachside restaurants, and nature trails.

For context — a gym membership alone in Naples can run $200 to $400 a month. A beach club membership? Easily $5,000 to $10,000 a year or more. Cable and internet together? Another $200 a month, at least. When you start stacking up what's included, $1,692 a month for all of it starts to feel less like a fee and more like a deal.

What You Don't Get for Free (The Stuff People Forget to Ask About)

Being transparent here, because there are a few things that aren't covered by these fees and you should budget for them:

Property taxes — Florida has no state income tax, but you do pay property taxes based on assessed value. For Pelican Bay condos, this is something to factor in when you're calculating your total monthly cost.

HO-6 Insurance — as mentioned earlier, the condo association covers the building exterior. You still need your own policy for your personal property and interior finishes. Expect to pay for this separately.

Utilities — water (non-irrigation) and electricity are not included in the condo fee. These are your responsibility.

Golf – the golf course in Pelican Bay is not included in the Foundation fee. Membership is separate and currently closed to new members.

The Bottom Line

Pelican Bay fees aren't cheap. Let's not pretend they are. But they're not arbitrary either. Every dollar is tied to something real, something you can see, use, and enjoy. Private beaches, maintained grounds, a gated community, resort-style amenities. It's all there, and it's all funded through these fees.

The key is understanding exactly what you're paying for before you buy. No surprises. No guessing. Just clear information and a solid decision.
